It's Time For The Latest Updates

Hello, much has happened since my previous newsletter. New blogs, new technics and a new Social Media platform. Let's go!

Webtalk

Webtalk is the new kid in town. A totally new and refreshing Social Media platform. Categorize your followers for private, social and business.

Free to join on invite only. It's a combination of Facebook and LinkedIn, but also will provide a market place and advertisers. They have 1M members now, but they grow with an unbelievable speed that they expect to have 10M members at the end of the month. This is the right time to join Webtalk, and you're invited!

Guest Blogging

This month I have decided to make space for guest bloggers who want to get more attention to their own website.

It's always better to expose your website link to 400+ visitors a month than to 2 visitors a week. When you are a starter and you want to increase your visitors, you can take up my offer to write a guest blog on my website. I have some rules, of course, you can read all about it here.

Banners

Place a banner on top or into the footer on every page.

Sounds a bit technical, but anyone can do this. This is a training for a WordPress website so, I don't know if it will work on other content management systems.

But if you have a WordPress website, this might just be an awesome chance to promote something for the upcoming Black Friday sales days. Read about how.
